

Fourth General Assembly

The situation in Afghanistan

Research Report

Leiden Model United Nations 2023

Forum: The Fourth General Assembly

Issue: The situation in Afghanistan

Student: Officer: Hubert Kluszczyński

Position: Deputy President

Introduction

The current situation in Afghanistan is one of profound significance on the global stage, marked by a complex web of political, social, and humanitarian challenges. As the world's attention remains fixed on this war-torn nation, recent developments have triggered a cascade of consequences that demand our careful consideration. In the wake of the U.S. withdrawal and the return of the Taliban to power in August 2021, Afghanistan has entered a new chapter in its tumultuous history, posing urgent questions about the future stability of the region, human rights, and international relations.

History

The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in 1979 stands as a pivotal and contentious moment in 20th-century history. Driven by a complex interplay of political, ideological, and strategic factors, it left an indelible mark on the Afghan people.

The roots of this invasion can be traced to the late 1970s, when Afghanistan was in the throes of significant political and social transformation. A coup in 1978 had brought a Communist government to power, a move met with resistance from various Afghan factions. As the government pushed forward with its socialist reforms, it encountered growing opposition from conservative and religious groups. This internal turmoil caught the attention of the Soviet Union, which was concerned about the erosion of its influence in the region and the potential for a pro-Western government to take root in Afghanistan.

In December 1979, Soviet troops crossed into Afghanistan, ostensibly to provide assistance to the Afghan Communist government, which they claimed had requested support against an insurgency. However, this incursion was met with widespread international condemnation. The ensuing Soviet-Afghan War unfolded over nearly a decade, characterized by fierce and brutal conflict. Afghan resistance groups, known as the Mujahideen, received support from various countries, most notably the United States. The war resulted in a staggering loss of life, extensive destruction, and a dire humanitarian crisis. It displaced millions of Afghans, left infrastructure in ruins, and shattered the country's social and economic fabric. The Soviet invasion further strained relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, adding to the already deep-seated Cold War tensions. Afghanistan became a key battleground in the global struggle for influence, with the United States and the West providing substantial aid to the Afghan resistance. In 1989, the Soviet Union conceded the difficulties of maintaining control in Afghanistan and withdrew its forces, marking a significant moment in the eventual collapse of the Soviet empire. However, the withdrawal did not bring stability to Afghanistan.

In the early 1990s, a group of religiously motivated Afghan fighters emerged in the southern provinces of Afghanistan. Comprised primarily of Pashtun fighters, who had received religious training in Pakistan, this group would eventually become the Taliban. Their primary objectives were to restore law and order, implement a strict interpretation of Islamic law, and bring stability to a war-torn country. The Taliban's military campaign gained momentum, and in September 1996, they captured

Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan. This marked a significant turning point in their rise to power, as they swiftly expanded their control over most of the country. While most countries did not officially recognize the Taliban government, a few nations, notably Pakistan and Saudi Arabia, did so. This recognition offered some level of international legitimacy to their rule. The Taliban's rule was marked by a strict interpretation of Islamic law, which included severe restrictions on women's rights, destruction of cultural heritage, and public executions for moral and criminal offenses. These policies drew international condemnation and led to their isolation on the global stage.

Association with Osama bin Laden, the leader of the Al-Qaeda terrorist network, heightened international concerns. Bin Laden found refuge in Afghanistan, which led to further pressure from the international community. The September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks in the United States, orchestrated by Al-Qaeda, brought a dramatic shift in international dynamics. The U.S. and its allies demanded the Taliban hand over Osama bin Laden, who was implicated in the attacks. When the Taliban refused, the United States led a coalition to remove the Taliban from power in Afghanistan. This war was a pivotal moment in the nation's history, marked by the U.S.-led invasion to remove the Taliban from power and dismantle Al-Qaeda. The swift military campaign achieved its primary objective.

The country transitioned toward democracy, and an interim Afghan government was established under President Hamid Karzai. The international community invested in nation-building efforts, including reconstruction and efforts to promote human rights, education, and infrastructure development. However, the results of the war were mixed.

While the Taliban lost control of the Afghan government, they regrouped and launched a persistent insurgency against the Afghan government and foreign forces. This insurgency, along with the complex and fragmented nature of Afghan politics, made it challenging to establish lasting stability and security in the country. The war also had significant consequences on the global stage. It marked a crucial moment in the broader War on Terror and intensified international efforts to combat terrorism. It underscored the difficulties of nation-building in a war-torn and ethnically diverse country like Afghanistan.

Over the years, the conflict evolved, and international forces gradually reduced their presence. Nevertheless, the war in Afghanistan continued for two decades, with the U.S. eventually announcing its withdrawal in 2021. This move led to the rapid resurgence of the Taliban and their return to power.

Definition of Key Terms

Cold War

A period of geopolitical tension between the United States and the Soviet Union and their respective allies, the Western Bloc and the Eastern Bloc.

Mujahedeen

Islamist rebel militants that fought the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan and the Soviet Union during the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Al-Qaeda

A Sunni pan-Islamist militant organization led by Salafi jihadists who self-identify as a vanguard spearheading a global Islamist revolution to unite the Muslim world under a supra-national Islamic state known as the Caliphate.

Democratic Republic of Afghanistan

Afghan state during the one-party rule of the People's Democratic Party of Afghanistan (PDPA) from 1978 to 1992.

Taliban

Islamic fundamentalist and Pashtun nationalist militant political movement in Afghanistan.

War on terror

A global counterterrorism military campaign initiated by the United States following the September 11 attacks and is also the most recent global conflict spanning multiple wars including the Iraq war and the war in Afghanistan.

General Overview

The situation in Afghanistan remains relevant on several fronts, with far-reaching implications for various aspects of regional and international affairs. The situation in Afghanistan is dynamic and continues to evolve, with ongoing negotiations, regional dynamics, and international engagement playing pivotal roles. The events in Afghanistan have reverberated globally, impacting not only the Afghan people but also shaping broader discussions on international security, diplomacy, humanitarian aid, and human rights.

Humanitarian Crisis

Afghanistan is grappling with a severe humanitarian crisis. Access to basic necessities like food, clean water, and healthcare has become a pressing issue for millions of Afghans.

Security Concerns

The instability in Afghanistan poses security concerns both within the country and internationally. Afghanistan remains a battleground for various militant groups, including the Taliban and ISIS-Khorasan. The potential for these groups to launch attacks beyond Afghanistan's borders raises international security concerns.

Refugee Crisis

The Taliban's return to power has led to a significant outflow of Afghan refugees, many of whom are seeking safety and asylum in neighboring countries and beyond. This situation has created a refugee crisis, straining resources and raising questions about international responsibility and cooperation.

Geopolitical Considerations

The situation in Afghanistan holds geopolitical significance. Regional and global powers, including China, Russia, and the United States, are monitoring developments in Afghanistan to safeguard their interests and influence the region's future. The country's strategic location is pivotal in geopolitics, particularly in relation to China's Belt and Road Initiative.

Human Rights and Gender Equality

The status of human rights, particularly the rights of women and minorities, remains a focal point of concern. The international community is pressuring the Taliban to respect human rights and uphold commitments related to gender equality. The situation in Afghanistan has reignited discussions about the role of the international community in promoting human rights.

Terrorism and Extremism

The presence of extremist groups in Afghanistan, such as the Taliban and ISIS-Khorasan, remains a source of international concern. The potential for these groups to plan and launch terrorist attacks both within Afghanistan and beyond poses a significant challenge to global counterterrorism efforts.

Reconstruction and Governance

The reconstruction of Afghanistan and the establishment of a stable and inclusive government are ongoing challenges. International actors are closely monitoring and engaging with efforts to stabilize the country and ensure effective governance.

Major Parties Involved

Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan

The official name used by the Taliban for their self-proclaimed government in Afghanistan.

The Afghan Government

Internationally recognized Afghan government, led by various administrations over the years, including Presidents Hamid Karzai and Ashraf Ghani. This government has received support from the international community and has been engaged in efforts to maintain stability and rebuild the country.

The United States

The U.S. played a central role in the Afghan conflict, leading the coalition that intervened in 2001 to oust the Taliban from power. The U.S. provided military support, development aid, and diplomatic efforts to stabilize Afghanistan until the US troop withdrawal in 2021.

NATO and International Coalition Forces

NATO member states and other international partners contributed troops and resources to the U.S.-led mission in Afghanistan, conducting security operations, reconstruction, and training of Afghan security forces.

Pakistan

Pakistan has been accused of providing support to the Taliban and other militant groups operating in Afghanistan, serving as a sanctuary and offering safe havens.

Iran

Iran has pursued its interests in Afghanistan, both through support for certain Afghan factions and through concerns about the drug trade and refugee flows across its borders.

Russian Federation

Russia has been concerned about the spread of instability and extremism from Afghanistan into Central Asia, leading to their involvement in Afghan affairs through political channels and supporting certain Afghan factions.

People's Republic of China

China's economic interests and concern about regional stability and security let to the country being engaged in diplomacy with various Afghan governments and groups, including the Taliban.

India

India has provided development aid to Afghanistan and engaged in various infrastructure and economic projects, often with the goal of stabilizing the country and countering Pakistan's influence.

Timeline of Events

1978 Beginning of the rule of the Communist government in Afghanistan.

1979 Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

1989 Withdrawal of the USSR's forces from the country.

1996 Taliban taking over the capital, Kabul.

2001 The September 11 attacks. NATO invasion of Afghanistan. Taliban routed from power.

2021 US troop withdrawal from Afghanistan. Taliban establishing The Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan.

Sources

<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-south-asia-11451718>

<https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Taliban>

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/United\_States\_invasion\_of\_Afghanistan

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Democratic\_Republic\_of\_Afghanistan

<https://www.amnesty.org/en/location/asia-and-the-pacific/south-asia/afghanistan/report-afghanistan/>

<https://www.pbs.org/newshour/politics/asia-jan-june11-timeline-afghanistan>

<https://www.hrw.org/world-report/2023/country-chapters/afghanistan>

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/2020%E2%80%932021\_US\_troop\_withdrawal\_from\_Afghanistan